Insoluble Problems

Anyone who has been trying to keep up with the growing schedule of problems about permanent arrangements for Germany will be astonished if the Big Four conference in Paris isn't crushed by the weight of its own responsibility.

This is a proper occasion to remember that some problems in this world are insoluble and must be dealt with in that light. Nothing can be done to find solutions for them, but much can be done to keep the problems themselves from growing worse.

Germany today is an insoluble problem. No one knows what should be done with it, or even how to do nothing with it—if that could be called a solution. Therefore the chief aim of diplomacy must be to avoid things which would intensify confusion and futility.

A year ago when Russia blockaded Berlin, that made the problem of Germany worse, not better. The lifting of the blockade removes that wholly unnecessary complication. But there will be no solution to the problem of Germany after World War II. At the most, there can be nothing but the best possible decisions to keep the problem from being made worse before time has had a chance to make it better. The conference will be a success if it does that much.

With Better Grace

Winston Churchill's political enemies in Britain probably are sneering about his Yankee taint in the wake of recent hard remarks about their soft-headedness.

Speaking before 22,000 persons at a conservative rally, "Winnie" said that labor politicians who curse capitalism while living off the surplus of the American system of capital make themselves look pretty silly.

"It must occur to sensible people to ask themselves how it is," he continued, bearing down where British socialism is weakest, "that if this American system is so wrong, the American democracy of 140,000,000 hard-working people are able to keep themselves at a far higher standard of life than we are and are able to lend us a helping hand and give us so much aid and bear so large a part of our burden."

It has occurred to sensible Americans to wonder about that. But they've not said much about it—not as much as they should. Sensible people have nothing to offer in this world but the things Mr. Churchill offered Britons when he became prime minister after the fiasco at Dunkirk—blood, toil, sweat and tears.

And the only reason Britons accepted was because they had no alternative. The instant Germany was licked, the socialist politicians moved in and offered an alternative—pie in the sky—charge everything to the government—more pay and less work. And Mr. Churchill was voted out of power. He talks about such things with better grace, as an Englishman. He knows how it happened and can't be accused of baiting his own countrymen.

Prejudice Ruined The Case

In past years when the time came to investigate the monkeyshines of congressional lobbyists, everybody could agree that an investigation was worth the effort. All lobbying had a bad name.

But a house resolution to investigate lobbyists this year falls flat. It may not even be concurred in by the senate. And if it is concurred in, no one's likely to get hot and bothered.

This is because the head of the Democratic party, which controls congress and therefore would control the investigation, has ruined the case against lobbies with an admission of prejudice. Mr. Truman has declared there are good and bad lobbyists; that the good ones are for the things he is for and the bad ones are against the things he is for; and that he is interested only in clamping down on opposition to his program of political action.

On second thought, it may be too warm in Washington for the Democratic party to turn the heat on lobbyists now. The strongest lobby in action since the 81st congress convened has been on the party's side—the union labor lobby threatening to unseat every member of congress who refused to vote for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley act.

Now We Know

Like the dope fiend who got that way by taking little doses at first to make himself feel better, then had to take bigger doses to keep from feeling worse, the handout state has no stopping point.

The CIO declares in an official policy statement that there must be no letup in government spending because industrial production would slump and employment cutbacks would take place in almost every segment of our economy because of underlying maldistributions which can only be corrected by the long-range objective of the trade union movement to improve living standards by the redistribution of our total income.

It's a fair question to ask who has been behind the Truman administration's jaw-jawed insistence on spending billions more, instead of billions less. All financial authorities agree that the federal government is in danger of destroying itself by peacetime spending at wartime rates, with no relief in sight—in 1950, with even higher taxes scheduled than already are being collected. Yet the federal government insists that it knows exactly what it's doing and will stand for no interference.

Only one answer is possible. The Truman administration has been telling the CIO policy-makers to redistribute total income by being liberal with other people's wealth. Its eye is on politics, not on arithmetic. Its critics have been pleading with it to look to a situation that has nothing to do with its aim, which is to spend and spend and spend and spend until it can't spend any more.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, May 24

A MOST benign and happy combination of major planets encourages the hope of a sudden and exhilarating development in which there may be unexpected thrills, heartwarming adventures and exciting experiences, quite unforeseen and unpredictable.

This follows the breaking-up of a stubborn opposition, frustration or unfriendly attitude that has discouraged, or blocked "the works." This is true not only in romance and love but in job, finance and real or workaday ambitions. A sudden break assures much pleasure and happy fulfillments, with cherished ideals due to be fulfilled.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a long-range and enduring change of circumstances, affecting radically the future, its associations and security, with surprising and dramatic thrills and experiences.

This is probably owing to the opportune withdrawal of opposition, obstacle or impediment, making way for a change, romantic, despatched and thrilling. There may be happy demonstrations to commemorate the radical about-face from resistance and reality to flights of dreams or ideas "come true" and in a thoroughly practical manner.

A child born on this day may enjoy a sudden reversal of their status and aspirations, from staid and relentless opposition to being high romance, adventure and happiness.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Alarming Symptoms Need Attention

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

THERE are certain symptoms which should never be neglected. One of these is the presence of blood in the urine. This is a sign that may have such grave indications that it should send anybody who experiences it to the doctor at once.

Because they associate such bleeding with the regular monthly periods, women are apt to ignore it, with the result that the condition producing the bleeding progresses, often to the point that it becomes incurable before medical aid is sought.

In women, this type of bleeding may be due to what is known as a sarcoma, a growth which occurs on the passage leading from the bladder to the outside, known as the urethra. An ulcer in this area, a tumor, or a stone also may be responsible.

Cause of Bleeding

To determine the exact cause of the bleeding in a particular case, a careful and thorough study must be carried out.

The appearance of the kidney excretion is important. For example, it may be dark red in color or smoky, or there may be blood clots present.

Then, it is important to determine whether the bleeding is the only sign, or whether there are such symptoms as pain or frequent emptying of the bladder.

If the bleeding occurs suddenly and is large in amount, without any other symptoms, the most likely cause is a tumor of the bladder or of the kidney. The fact that the bleeding stops after a few days does not mean that the cause for it has cleared up. Hence, even if it occurs only once, the incident must be thoroughly investigated since, if tumor growths are detected early, they can be successfully removed.

Blood in the urine may occur as a result of acute inflammation of the bladder, or of an ulcer or of a stone in the bladder. Of course,

Couple Wed In Ceremony Saturday

For the traditional "something old," Marjorie Dow Curtis carried an heirloom handkerchief when she became the bride of Paul Woodruff in a beautiful wedding at 11:30 a. m. Saturday in the Presbyterian Upper Room chapel. This handkerchief is 73 years old and came down through the family from her great-grandmother, Mrs. John Carroll Whinnery. It was brought by her husband, Dr. Whinnery, from the Philadelphia centennial in 1876.

The bride was lovely in a pale blue pure silk print, complemented with a corsage of white roses and stephanotis. She wore a pale blue straw hat trimmed in flowers.

An artistic arrangement of palms centered with a bouquet of white snapdragons and white carnations made the setting for the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. H. L. Ogden, pastor.

Only the families witnessed the nuptials.

Wesley Woodruff of Willoughby, brother of the groom, soloist, sang "Bequeath" and "I Love You Truly" before the service. He was accompanied by his sister, Miss Beth H. Woodruff of Cleveland.

Mrs. Walter Hofmeister played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin for the processional and used Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recession.

Mrs. Wesley Woodruff, sister-in-law of the groom, matron of honor, was costumed in a grey pure silk print, with harmonizing accessories.

and wore a corsage of pink roses. Wesley Woodruff served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Dow chose for her daughter's wedding a black and white crepe dress, used red accessories, and wore a corsage of white carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Woodruff appeared in a pink crepe outfit, with white accessories, and wore a corsage of pink and white flowers.

The wedding luncheon was at Barnett's. A tiered cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and flowers were used to enhance the table.

Mrs. Woodruff, daughter of Mrs. Norman E. Dow of E. Fifth st., is a graduate of Andrews School for Girls at Willoughby. A beautician, she has been employed at the Bonfert Beauty shop.

Mr. Woodruff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Woodruff of Cleveland, who were unable to attend the wedding because of ill health. He attended Case School of Applied Science and is now employed as a draftsman by the Electric Furnace Co.

After a week's honeymoon trip, the couple will reside on the Lisbon rd.

The bride traveled in an aqua gabardine suit, wore a panama hat and used burnt almond colored accessories.

With Major Hoople

Boyles COLUMN

By HAL BOYLES

NEW YORK (AP)—A lady poet once wrote: "Laugh and the world laughs with you."

If this were only true, H. Allen Smith—who is certainly no lady and probably no poet—would be a happy man indeed.

For his job is to make as much of the world laugh as he can. He writes funny books for a living.

Smith should be in a position to give a formula on how to be funny in print. Beginning in 1941 with "Low Man On a Totem Pole," his books have sold some 2,600,000 copies. His publisher says he is "the best-selling humorist since Mark Twain."

But Smith knows of no sure-fire formula for creating a belly laugh. "The problem a humorist faces," he said, "is that people are on different wave lengths. The public reacts differently. Humor is the most difficult form of expression for the reason that you are never sure of it. And there is nothing sorer than a joke that doesn't go."

"You have to tell yourself: 'To hell with the others—I'll write for those on my beam!'"

The humor wave lengths at his own four-acre homestead at suburban Mt. Kisco collide head-on. Smith's daughter, Nancy, 20, likes his writing, but he doubts if his son, Allen, 21, has ever read one of his 11 books clear through.

"My wife's not on my wave length either," he said. "She looks at each succeeding manuscript and says, "Good God, you're not going to turn that in!"

Mrs. Smith used to be society editor on a newspaper.

Smith himself began his career by shining shoes and sweeping up hair in a barber shop. He worked on a dozen papers as a wandering newspaperman, a career in which he felt grammar school education was no real handicap.

He also has written a syndicated column, served as a radio emcee, and once he wrote five lines for a movie during a six-month stay in Hollywood.

"I kept alive by writing funny memos to the boss," he said.

A humorist at work is as lonely as a fly at a DDT salesman's convention. Smith spends four hours every morning at his typewriter in a workshop over his garage. He writes swiftly.

"The thing I am proudest of in my newspaper life is that I was a helluva good rewrite man," he said.

He still is. He writes each book twice. The first time he races through as quickly as he can hit the keys. The second time he puts on verbal polish. His latest book, "Low and Inside," is a collection of baseball anecdotes co-authored with Ira Smith. It took him a month, once the material was ready.

Smith is a small, sharp-nosed man of 41. He is sober of face and heart, and he has a look around the eyes reminiscent of Ernie Pyle. He likes people individually, hates sham, "collect" screwballs, and doesn't blush when referred to as "a debunker with a heart of gold."

He takes his humor seriously. "I think a guy who can write humor contributes more than 50 per cent of the serious writers," he said.

To him the funniest sight beneath the sun is a formal ceremony of any kind, because it shows mankind to be more than it is.

"Isn't he hates most is stuffed-shirtism."

"If I preach at all," he said, "I preach bitterly."

I asked him what was the saddest thing he had ever seen.

"The human race," he said. Most humorists reach that conclusion.

Nimitz, retired admiral of the fleet, declared that "we who worked with him will never forget his great contributions."

One after another, the tributes rang the same note: Sacrifice and labor for America.

The court of inquiry in the case was ordered by Rear Admiral M. D.
Willcutts, commandant of the Naval medical center. Just exactly what it might examine was not certain in advance. From statements of officials at the hospital,
this story was reconstructed:

In the weeks that followed Forrestal's entry for treatment, he seemed to be on the road to complete recovery. He received visitors, among them President Truman,
made phone calls, read the paper.

But when the patient's bedtime came Saturday night he declined to take the usual sedative.

Choosing a time when attendants were elsewhere on his 16th floor, Forrestal left his room (carefully
avoiding going through another room of his suite in which a doctor was located), walked diagonally across a corridor to a diet kitchen. There the window, unlike that of his own room, had no tightly secured wire screen.

A nurse on the seventh floor heard the thud of his body as it struck an offset of the building above the third floor. He was dead when attendants rushed to the spot. Curiously, his wristwatch was still running. He wore his pajamas and his bathrobe. The robe's belt cord was twisted tightly around his neck.

Admiral Willcutts told reporters:
"That type of suicide is impossible to prevent. You can't take a man of that brilliance and put a guard over him all the time. There were fewer and fewer restrictions as his condition improved."

Plans for the funeral—including whether there will be a military burial for the World War I veteran and former cabinet member—were left to Mrs. Forrestal.

She flew in from Paris today aboard the presidential plane, the Independence, with her son Michael, an employee of the Economic Cooperation administration in Paris.

In the belief that her husband was recovering satisfactorily, she had gone to France to find a place for him to convalesce.

McKinley Pulls Surprise, Shows Improved Form Saturday

Bulldogs Much Stronger Than In Relays Show Here; One Record Falls, One Is Tied

By BOB DIXON
A vastly improved Canton McKinley High track team, coached by Chuck Wright, came through in impressive style Saturday afternoon at Rely stadium and successfully defended its district track and field championship for north-eastern Ohio. The Bulldogs upset a favored Akron East aggregation, scoring 34½ points to East's 28½.

Over 1,000 fans watched the meet on a clear, bright afternoon. One record was broken and another tied during the day.

McKinley won only four first places in the district meet, both relays and both sprints. They scored in eight of the 14 events, while East tallied in eight and took firsts in three events.

The team scoring was as follows: Canton McKinley, 34½; Akron East, 28½; Struthers, 20; Youngstown Rayen, 19; Akron North, 18; Campbell Memorial, 18; East Palestine, 13; Akron Buchtel, 11½; Barberton, 11; Louisville, 10; Warren, 9; Niles, 6; Salem, Canton Lehman, Akron South, Akron Garfield and Boardman, 4 each; Fitch, 3; and Mentor 2½. Cuyahoga Falls, Akron St. Mary's, and Ravenna failed to tally.

The outstanding individual performances in the meet were made by Don Winn of McKinley, Glenn Young of East Palestine, Dave Marlowe of Akron North, Bob Barber of Akron East, and Nick Tsaknis of Campbell Memorial.

Winn and Marlowe were the meet's only double winners. Winn topped easy firsts in both the 100 and 220 yards dashes, giving McKinley 12 of its points. He also anchored the winning Bulldog 880 relay team, bringing the baton home in front after making up a deficit of 220 yards dashes, giving McKinley 12 of its points. He also anchored the winning Bulldog 880 relay team, bringing the baton home in front after making up a deficit of 220 yards dashes, giving McKinley 12 of its points.

Young of Palestine continued to display terrific form in the broad jump. He snapped a three year old record set by Wade of Palestine in 1946. Young jumped seven times and surpassed the old mark six times. His best leap was 22 feet, nine inches. He also took second in the 100 yard dash.

The mile run went to Boxler of Akron East for the second consecutive year in the very good time of 4:33.3 minutes. He also topped the mile in both the 1948 and '49 Night Relays for a clean sweep here. In Saturday's race he allowed Wagner of Akron North to set the pace and

Third Double Header In Row Is Dropped; Wynn Goes For Tribe

PHILADELPHIA, May 23—(AP)—The forlorn Cleveland Indians, losers in doubleheaders on three consecutive Sundays, will try again tonight against the Philadelphia Athletics.

Early Wynn pitches for Cleveland against Philadelphia's Bill McCahan.

The Tribe now has dropped 11 of 13 games and eight of nine since leaving the cloistered confines of Cleveland stadium. The 5-4 and 7-3 reverses to Connie Mack's sparkling A's yesterday were almost as dismal as the double shutout in Chicago the previous Sunday or the twin flunking by Washington May 8.

The defeats dropped the Tribe two games behind the sixth-place Boston Red Sox and six and a half lengths behind the league-leading New York Yankees.

Pete Suder spoiled Satchell Paige's bid for a victory through a brilliant relief job in the first game with a two-base hit to score Wally Moses in the eighth inning. Paige had allowed but three infield hits before Moses opened the eighth with a single off Joe Gordon's glove.

Previously the Tribe had tied the score 4-4 in the seventh after being in the hole 4-2 since the second inning.

In the second game, Mike Garcia also succumbed to wildness, walking the first three A's to face him. Bearden was called back in, but the star of last year's team threw two wild pitches and surrendered a single to Elmer Valo for four runs.

Eddie Joost, the A's homer-hitting lead off man, started the second inning with his eighth circuit clout of the year and the issue was never in doubt. Garcia was charged with the loss.

Parnell A Blessing For Red Sox; Has Kept 'em From Complete Failures

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Marse Joe McCarthy and his penant hopeful Boston Red Sox can thank their lucky stars for Pitcher Mel Parnell.

Red Sox fans hate to think where their favorites would be today were it not for the stylish left hander from New Orleans. It's a cinch Boston would be much worse off than its current 14-14 sixth place rating.

While the rest of the pitching staff has been floundering around, Parnell has been well high sensational. The 26-year-old sophomore has made seven starts and completed them all. But that tells only half the story.

He has won six and lost one. His only defeat was by Cleveland, 4-3, and it took the Indians 12 innings to do it. Two of his triumphs were shutouts. Three others were one-run margins, 2-1, 3-2 and 4-3. Twice he had to go into extra innings to win. Mel has allowed only 12 runs and 51 hits in 69 1-3 innings. He's walked 28 and struck out 32.

One of his over-time triumphs came yesterday when the blond six-footer had to wait until the 12th before he was able to strike out a 3-2 decision over Virgil Trucks and the Detroit Tigers. To make it a perfect day for the favorite son of the Louisiana Parnells, Mel drove in two runs including the game-winning tally with a 12th inning single.

Parnell, who never has been beaten by the Tigers, now is the first American league pitcher with six victories.

It's been "Gloomy Sunday" for the Indians this season. When the Philadelphia Athletics whipped them yesterday, 5-4 and 7-3, it marked the sixth and seventh Sunday losses in as many games for the Tribe. The crippled World champions now are in seventh place six and a half games behind the front running New York Yankees.

Rookie Alex Kellars hurled his fifth victory in the opener. Eddie Joost's eighth home run and Hank Majeski's two-run double helped Lou Brissie win his fourth game in the nightcap.

Ken Raffensberger, veteran left-hander of the Cincinnati Reds, came within a single of pitching a no-hitter for the third time in two seasons. The 31-year-old Pennsylvanian shut out Brooklyn, 2-0, on one hit in the second game of a doubleheader in Cincinnati. The Dodgers took the opener, 3-0, as Don Newcombe, Rookie Negro right-hander, won his first start.

Raffensberger had a no-hitter until the eighth, when Gil Hodges, first man to face him, punctured his dream with a single to left.

The Boston Braves tied the New York Giants for the National league leadership, beating the Chicago Cubs, 7-2 while the Giants divided a doubleheader with the Cardinals in St. Louis. The Redbirds won the opener, 3-2, on Stan Musial's three-run homer in the third. The Giants walloped six pitchers in the finale for a 13-4 triumph.

Johnny Sain gained his fourth victory of the season for the Braves, outpitching Johnny Schmitz and Cal McLish. First Baseman Elbie Fletcher, playing his first game for the Braves, rapped out two hits in three official times at bat.

Dick Sisler's pinch hit double in the ninth inning scored Jack Mayo with the run that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second game was postponed by rain.

The Chicago White Sox scored all their runs in the last two innings to defeat Washington, 6-4. Clyde Shoun, recently obtained from the Braves, won his first American league game, in relief.

Rain washed out the doubleheader between the St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees in New York.

JOE KIRKWOOD WINS TOURNEY

PHILADELPHIA, May 23—(AP)—It just goes to show you: Anything can happen in golf.

A movie star won the $15,000 Philadelphia Inquirer tournament yesterday from a field studded with many of the sport's top stars.

And young Joe Kirkwood, Jr., in Hollywood he's the movie version of Joe Palooka—did it in a fashion that convinced spectators and opponents alike. His 276 score for 72 holes was 12 strokes under par—a new competitive record for Whitmarsh Valley Country club's 6,670-yard layout. Along the victory road he shot a 66 on the second round that also was a stroke better than the old course record.

Joe finished all by himself. Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., carded 290, a shot better than his own winning total in 1948. It was just good enough to pick up $1,900 second money. Kirkwood got $2,600.

Back of these two came Bobby Locke, the South African, with 281; Fred Haas, Jr., New Orleans, 282; and Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, 283. Three others bettered the four-round par total of 288. Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, had 285; Clayton Hafner, Charlotte, N. C., 286, and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., 287.

That 66 score Saturday, added to an opening round of 68, put Joe far in front of the field. And when he added another 68 yesterday he was out in front all alone.

20,000 Readers List Preferences For Home

Want Two-Car Garage, Home On the Outskirts of Town

If people could have exactly the house they want, they would abandon all frills in order to get the greatest amount of living space at the most economical cost.

This is indicated by requests made by more than 20,000 newspaper readers in all parts of the United States and some foreign countries.

Their letter were sent to Walter T. Anick, Ann Arbor, Mich., architect, who planned a house incorporating the main desires expressed by the readers.

The demand for a two car garage was especially noticeable, even if half of it would be used for Junior's bike and skis, the lawn mower, and other storage purposes.

A paramount preference among the 20,000 letter writers was to live on the outskirts of a town, or in the suburbs, where they could have a large lot, or a few acres. They expressed the want of space for gardens and space for children to play off the street.

In living space, a sizeable living room was put above everything else. A fireplace was invariably specified and ample closet space, such as that provided by a storage wall, was asked for.

The dining "L" off the living room won by a wide margin over the separate dining room. This modern development in design affords ample area for the immediate family and is easily expandable for occasional large groups.

The size of bedrooms ran secondary to usable wall space, and shallow, wide closets were favored over narrow deep closets.

Most families indicated they want a breakfast alcove in the kitchen, where a good share of ordinary meals can be served.

Another marked preference is for a laundry adjoining the kitchen and convenient to the outdoors, rather than in the basement.

A strong desire for some convenience in outdoor living also is apparent, with outdoor grills and terraces requested.

Expansibility for future needs seems to be a must. Although extra rooms may not be completed at the present time because of costs, they must be planned for in the majority of cases.

Simplicity of construction and the use of standard building materials predominated in the consensus. Asphalt roofing won wide favor with varieties of colors in demand. Wood siding and painted cinder or concrete block were chosen for exterior finishes.

Basements outranked basement-less plans, with heater rooms, hobby shops and recreation rooms asked for.

Picture windows facing the garden won by a big vote among the 20,000 suggestions.

Office Building Glass Good After 20 Years

Structural glass installed in corridors and washrooms of a 23-story office building in Chicago in 1928 is reported in excellent condition after 20 years of service.

The building is at 120 S. LaSalle st., owned and operated by the Lurie company.

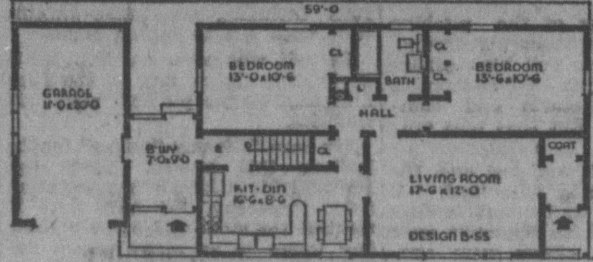

When it was built, the contract called for white Vitrolite to a height of five feet with black Vitrolite base and cap in the corridors, with similar specifications for the wash rooms.

"This combination is attractive to the eye and the material is easy to keep clean," Philip F. Hoops, building manager, said. "It has stood up remarkably well after being tried for two decades."

Usual cleaning agents for the glass is soap and water, although disinfectants and other cleansers do not harm the substance.

The lower Yangtze valley of China is one of the most densely populated areas in the world.

STRAIGHT WALLS, LOW ROOF FOR ECONOMICAL HOUSE

THE BRADFORD has its entrance vestibule in a location which permits this house to be placed easily with its narrow side to the street. This plan is expedient for a narrow lot.

The Bradford's plan calls for two bedrooms, a kitchen-dinette combination and a living room. All rooms in the house open into the bedroom hall, allowing privacy in circulation.

Closet space is ample in The Bradford. There is a coat closet in the front vestibule. There is a linen closet and a general storage closet in the hall. And there are wardrobes in each of the two bedrooms.

The Bradfords attached breezeway and garage are optional. When present, they give width to the house. The Bradford's straight walls and low roof lines make it an economical house to frame. The Bradford is also adaptable to the use of concrete block construction.

Plans shown, call for frame construction with siding. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Overall width of The Bradford is 34 feet. The main body of the house is 40 feet by 34 feet. The area is 947 square feet with 18,192 cubic feet.

For further information about THE BRADFORD, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn.

Plans For Multi-Million Dollar Housing Project At Wright-Patterson

DAYTON—(INS)—Plans for a multi-million dollar housing project at Dayton's Wright-Patterson air base are nearing completion.

It was rumored that the plans will be revealed shortly. However, Col. J. G. Griggs, base installation officer for the air material command in Washington, could not be reached for comment.

It was reported that Colonel Griggs' office has worked out details of the plan and that a St. Louis contractor has furnished construction estimates.

The development is to consist of between 500 and 1,000 units built by private enterprise with the government guaranteeing a certain income from rents over a fixed period.

Land east of Patterson field already has been placed under option.

Between 300 and 400 units are earmarked for officers and enlisted personnel with the remainder going to civilian workers at the base.

Here's Inexpensive Way To Add Space To Older Dwelling

One of the least expensive ways of expanding a home is to take advantage of space already enclosed. Whether extra sleeping quarters are needed or an extra room for hobbies or sewing, study or recreation, a well-lighted and well-heated attic is one quick answer to the demand for more room.

With modern building materials, it often is an easy task to add interior walls and a ceiling to the attic. And with modern heating technique, year 'round comfort can be realized without sacrifice of valuable floor space.

In homes where steam or hot water is used as the heating medium, convectors radiators are effective for attic installation. Convectors are easy and inexpensive to install. They can be used as free-standing units, flush against walls, or can be recessed in the walls without sacrifice of heating comfort.

Two sizes of sheathing are available in two main sizes. The large boards are four feet wide and from eight to twelve feet long. They are put on vertically. For horizontal application, insulating board is made in boards two feet wide and eight feet long.

Most common of all home repair work is painting, the report showed. Either the exterior or some room in the interior is painted in about a third of all U.S. homes in every average year.

FOR QUIETER ROOMS Although insulating board is employed extensively in home building to cut heat losses in winter and provide greater comfort in summer, it also is used widely for sound quieting in recreation rooms, study rooms and so on. The air spaces between the fibers of the board serve to retard transmission of sound as well as to curb passage of heat.

SIMPLE TOOLS PROVIDE START FOR WORKSHOP

Every home owner needs a workshop, either as a hobby or for the thousand and one maintenance and repair jobs that keep bobbing up. Outfitting a workshop may be something of a problem to a beginner. Here's how a veteran handy man says it should be done:

If your home has a basement, that's probably the place for your workshop. In a basementless home, a corner of the utility room will suffice. The first requirement is a workbench. Be sure it's heavy enough to stand up under rugged treatment and high enough so you can work without undue back bending. The next step is to put in a supply of basic tools. You'll need a vise, a hammer, a handsaw, a plane, a brace and bits and an assortment of pliers, wrenches, screwdrivers and chisels.

Need Crosscut Saw The handsaw should be of the crosscut type, with eight or nine teeth to the inch. Later you may want to add a rip saw but a crosscut saw will take care of an occasional ripping job. The vise should be of malleable iron jaws at least three inches wide. A vise with hardened removable jaws is favored by the experts, but costs more. Heavy steel hammers are better than light ones. A ripping hammer, the kind with claws that go straight back, will get nails out without bending them.

A brace with a sweep of about six inches is recommended for wood boring. The ratchet type can be worked easiest in close quarters. The bits that can be used most often are the quarter-, half- and one-inch sizes. A bit with a screwdriver end will come in handy.

The careful craftsman will want to have his corners true and surfaces level, so a combination square with built-in level should be in the tool kit. Less versatile but still useful is a carpenter's framing square.

Try Newer Materials The lumber needed for various jobs can be purchased as the needs arise, but the workshop should be well stocked with nails, screws and bolts in a wide variety of sizes. Glass jars with screw type tops are handy receptacles for these fasteners.

In addition to working with wood, the home craftsman will find pleasure and satisfaction in putting to use some of the newer building materials. Insulating board, for example, is easy to handle and it has scores of uses. One project not beyond the skill of the average handy man might be erecting a partition to close off the room. Insulating board is ideal for that purpose, or for completely finishing the walls and ceilings, for that matter. Other uses for insulating board can be found in building folding screens, bulletin boards, fireplace screens, dart targets, insulated milk boxes and the like.

Home Repair for 1949 Estimated by Council

NEW YORK—(AP)—Keeping the nation's non-farm homes in prime condition will cost American homeowners somewhere between $2,500,000,000 and $3,100,000,000 in 1949.

That sum is being spent on roofing, painting, carpentry work and other repairs this year, according to estimates by the Tile Council of America.

Painting and decorating, inside and out, are expected to account for about $30 of every $100 of home repair expenditures, the report revealed. Repair and replacement of heating equipment will take $25, and roofing about $15, on the average.

Installation of showers, tiling of bathrooms and replacement of piping will take $6 out of each $100, and carpentry work will account for the same amount. Miscellaneous repairs will account for the rest of the theoretic $100, according to the report.

Most common of all home repair work is painting, the report showed. Either the exterior or some room in the interior is painted in about a third of all U.S. homes in every average year.

FOR QUIETER ROOMS Although insulating board is employed extensively in home building to cut heat losses in winter and provide greater comfort in summer, it also is used widely for sound quieting in recreation rooms, study rooms and so on. Use Telephone Raceways to Save Your Home Walls

Two of the most prudent precautions to take in building a new home today are the installation of adequate electric outlets for the constantly growing number of household appliances and the installation of telephone raceways.

After a modern insulated house is completed it becomes difficult and expensive to change its wiring system.

Telephone raceways are pre-installed connections that facilitate future instrument installation at almost any point in a house.

With monthly charges for extension telephone bells and extension phones now on a reasonable basis it is wise for a homeowner to provide for changes of mind in the future.

Also the advantages of plug-in telephones are something worth considering especially in two-story homes. With a plug-in system, an instrument can be moved from one room to another and back again at will.

Built-in raceways simplify auxiliary telephone installations and eliminate damage to walls and decoration.

A substitute for built-in raceways has been developed in a raceway baseboard. This consists of two extruded aluminum interlocking elements. The lower one is screwed to the floor and the upper is a removable plate—the top concealing all wiring in a fire-safe panel.

Another handy invention is an electric outlet strip. In the place of ordinary base outlets, this strip permits plugging in household appliances at any point around a room.

Winter Fuel Bills High? Repair Heating System

Even though it is difficult to think about your home heating system during the torrid summer months when the sun is boiling down outdoors, there's no better time to bring your idle heating equipment up to date. Especially is this true if your fuel bills were skyhigh last winter, and you have reached the end of your patience with outmoded equipment that should be replaced.

Consult your heating and plumbing contractor if a major improvement or complete replacement of the central heating system is necessary. Oftentimes he can suggest repairs or improvements that will effect worthwhile economies without a great outlay of cash. Or, if your heating plant has reached the stage of honorable retirement, he is your best guide to the modern system you should select as a replacement.

Sometimes excessive fuel bills and general dissatisfaction with the performance of your present plant may be traced to the distribution system, particularly the units which are the heat outlets in the individual rooms. If this is the case, investigate some of the advancements that have been made in this field. If you heat with steam or hot water, look into the new convactor radiators that are now in wide use in modern homes.

But whether modernization means major or minor changes, you will be wise to make them now. For the months that the system is idle are woefully short, and the next heating season rolls around always before we expect it.

NEW OR IMPROVED HOMES Received by 30 Million

Private home builders have provided new or modernized housing for more than 30,000,000 persons since 1940, according to Rodney M. Lockwood, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

U.S. census figures, Mr. Lockwood said, show that in April, 1940, there were 29,683,000 habitable dwellings in non-farm areas of the United States. By April, 1947, this figure had been increased to 34,111,000. The Census Bureau has reported that in the following twenty months about 2,200,000 more homes were added to the supply, and Bureau of Labor Statistics figures indicate that since the first of the year this total has been further increased by new construction of nearly 200,000 units. This would bring the total habitable dwellings in non-farm areas to about 36,500,000.

Home Builders Deplore FHA Cut, 'Slows Up Construction'

Construction of new homes is being retarded by the cut in funds for operating the Federal Housing Administration, according to Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Cortright warned in the Washington Letter of the association that the reduction of $800,000 ordered by congress in the operating funds of the mortgage financing agency is having a drastic effect in slowing down the start of new homes. Unlike most government agencies, operations of the FHA have returned several million dollars profit to the government.

Backlog of Applications

The cut in the budget of the agency was ordered when a peak load of applications has swamped the agency, Mr. Cortright pointed out. Already a backlog of applications for 63,000 units, half of them rental housing, has piled up. "The FHA is merely requesting the right to expand its own funds," Mr. Cortright said. "These funds are obtained from FHA normal insurance operations. Rather than costing the government, money FHA is a highly profitable corporation."

The basic factor affecting FHA administrative expense is the volume of insurance applications. These have been on the increase since the enactment of the Housing Act of 1948.

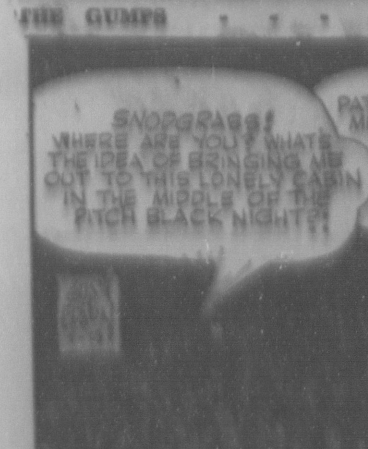

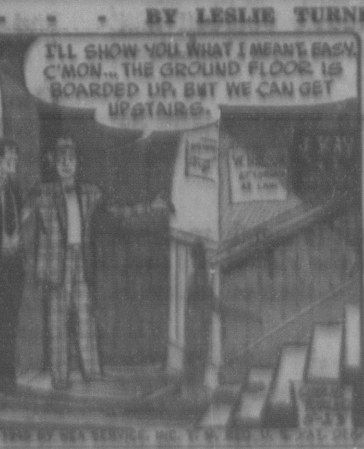

Original FHA Budget Cited
The original FHA budget for fiscal 1949 was $19,000,000 based on an anticipated 341,500 unit applications. Mr. Cortright continued: "After the passage of the so-called 'teeny-weeny' Housing Act of 1948 it became evident that applications would soar to at least 541,000. The eighth congress authorized FHA to operate on a deficiency basis to meet the new workload."

Unless congress restores the full amount requested, FHA will find itself with less personnel to handle an increasing volume of business, he declared. This will mean less homes built by the thousands of private builders who are waiting for FHA approval to obtain production financing. It also will mean future losses to the government as a result of inadequate risk determination by employees working under heavy pressure, he added.

HOME FIRE ALARMS

There are several fire alarm systems now in use in homes and on farms. They are more sensitive than automatic sprinkler systems and sound an alarm as soon as fire breaks out at any point. Some detect either fire or sudden cold and can be used for heat failure in important places such as incubators.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

'IT'S NICE TO HAVE A BIG HOUSE'

When more than 30 friends attended the house-warming at the new Howard Minser home at 1885 N. Ellsworth ave., they viewed one of the most attractive nine-room homes in the Salem area. Although the Minsters moved in last winter, the interior has been recently completed.

On the first floor of the brick structure are the living room, dining room, kitchen, breakfast nook, bath and bedroom. On the second floor are four rooms and a bath which have been made into an apartment. A high frame dormer in the back of the house and dormers in the front of the house allow full ceilings for second floor rooms. A separate inside entrance is used for the apartment.

The house is 40 ft. wide by 30 ft. deep, plus the breakfast room on the back of the house.

In the basement is a recreation room with a large sandstone fireplace which is duplicated in the first floor living room. There are also fruit, coal and laundry rooms in the basement. The house is heated by hot water and convective radiators. A shower has been installed in the basement as have a freezer, water-softener and a place for canning equipment.

Smooth plaster has been used for the walls. They have been painted in pastel shades. Dark mahogany doors have been placed throughout the home. Hardwood flooring is in all rooms except kitchen and baths. Mrs. Minser said that as they have a large house some room space could be sacrificed in order to have larger closets than is found in most homes.

Four three-window units have been constructed in the living room and connecting dining room. The larger, center sections are the picture window type while the two smaller windows at either side swing out—casement style.

The kitchen is long and rectangular shaped with working shelves, stove and sink in a straight line and are well lighted with two large windows. A novel dust bin in the kitchen allows Mrs. Minser to sweep any floor dust into an opening at floor level. It collects in a bin in the basement. Wood cabinets are used in the Minser kitchen.

The convenient plug-in phone has been installed.

In back of the house is a 16 ft. by 30 ft. insulated frame woodwork shop where Minser pursues his hobby. It is fully floored and heated and contains a number of power tools.

A brick two-car garage is 24 ft. by 22 ft. has a cement floor and overhead doors. Minser plans to completely floor the second story for storage space.

The house has been built on a two-acre plot with approximately one acre devoted to garden space.

A covered terrace will be constructed in back of the house and summer plans include complete landscaping of the ground around the home.

W. W. Luce was the contractor and John Auld handled the masonry phase of construction for the home which is placed in the $25,000 bracket.

American women spend an estimated $1,000,000,000 a year on cosmetics and perfumes.

Building Costs Rise Less Than After Other War

Because of increased efficiency in the construction industry, home building costs have had a more moderate increase since the beginning of World War II than in the comparable period for World War I, Melvin E. Baker, chairman of the Construction Industry Information Committee, says.

"Although the housing demand has been overwhelmingly greater in the more recent period, residential building costs have risen only 114 percent from 1939 through 1948, as compared with a rise of 128 percent in the much shorter period of 1914 to 1920, according to the 20 city index of E. H. Boeckh and Associates," Mr. Baker said.

The extraordinary demand since World War II and the great inflationary pressures which have raised the prices of all commodities have been counteracted to a marked extent by a great improvement in the organization, flexibility, and performance of the building industry itself," Mr. Baker said.

"This time there was swift improvement in the availability of building materials; greatly increased use of more efficient tools, materials, parts, and methods; and a resulting large volume of new housing production immediately after the war. This production in the critical first three years after World War II was almost two and a half times as great as in the like period after the first World War.

"Not only the quantity of production but also the stability of performance has been a factor that has helped to resist the many inflationary pressures connected with housing.

"Within the second year after the end of World War I, a sharp decline in volume of residential construction had begun. Today, we find ourselves with three and a half years of postwar accomplishment behind us and production still going strong.

"The Boeckh index is a widely used and accepted measurement of residential building costs."

Luminous Ceiling Used To Lessen Eye Strain

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A luminous ceiling to lessen eye strain under artificial light has been devised by two scientists.

The scientists devised a translucent plastic ceiling and installed fluorescent lights that diffuse the room with an even glow of illumination, minus glare and shadow.

The process was perfected by Miss Domina E. Spencer, an assistant professor of physics at Brown university, and Parry Moon, an assistant professor of electrical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Assembly Line Ideas Used to Build Homes

A Tulsa, Okla., builder proves that a housing construction job can be organized on a mass production line basis. His first step was the assembling of sufficient materials to assure uninterrupted operation of crews on the job. Wherever possible he purchased materials and equipment in carload lots. He used six basic plans for two-bedroom houses and three for three bedrooms.

The project was set up with each site as part of the mass production line. Crews assigned to the various jobs moved along the blocks in sequence, with all building processes carried out in the conventional manner. Power tools were utilized in every manner possible in the hands of men trained to do certain special tasks, such as cutting joists, studs and rafters, or doing cabinet work.

In his operations, this builder exercised special ingenuity in design and technique along with full use of mass production practices, and polished every operation and installation to hold lost motion and delay to a minimum.

National Home Week To Be Held Sept. 11-17

A big housing show will be unveiled from September 11 to 17. "Star players" will be the home builders for their associates representing every phase of the home building industry. The setting will be thousands of new homes in metropolitan areas and the audience will be millions of persons interested in new developments in housing. They will throng to see new appliances, building materials and construction equipment—the evidence of home building progress in the past decade.

Dramatization will be the key note of the National Home Week programs in many areas. Home Builders associations are planning many special events, such as the construction of model homes during the week, special tours for civic leaders, and a general open house for Mr. and Mrs. America.

Parking meters were first installed in American cities in 1936, when six municipalities put them in.

Remote Control Wiring Favored

Many homes are now being electrically wired on a new principle of remote control switches, which operate on weak doorbell circuits, eliminating much of the cost of heavy cables through the walls, reducing fire hazards and making it possible to control lights, outlets and small household appliances from any number of points in the house.

Instead of switches cutting the heavy house current, they operate magnetic relays in the light fixtures, or outlets, so that lightweight 22-gauge wire carrying only 25 volts is all that is necessary to and from switches. A small transformer provides the current for the switch circuits, the same as for a standard doorbell circuit.

Developed by General Electric, the remote control wiring system is expected to reduce electric wiring costs considerably.

One of the biggest advantages is that the system makes multi-switch control practicable in low-cost homes. Formerly the cost of installing heavy cables to more than one switch was a real handicap. With cheap wiring any number of control combinations can be worked out.

For example, front and rear door lights can be switched on not only at the doors, but from kitchen or bedroom, as well. The radio can be switched off temporarily from the telephone location. The electric coffee maker can be turned on from the bedroom when the family gets up. An entire house lighting system can be switched on from a bedroom if an intruder is heard.

Because of the low voltage at the switches the danger of shock from wet hands is eliminated. This is especially important in bathrooms, laundries and kitchens. Also any switch can be short circuited without danger of fire from overheated wires.

A new type of air valve for use with hot water heating systems keeps radiators, convectors and baseboards free of air automatically. It can be used on any existing radiator, convector or baseboard or on new installations.

Not permitted in the cemetery are permanent metal markers, wooden crosses or markers, rose bushes, low spreading evergreens or shrubs, or spread-vines or iris beds.
